Biographical Note:

Lucien Barbour was born in Canton, Connecticut on March 4, 1811. He was graduated from Amherst College in 1837. Following graduation, he studied law under Stephen C. Stevens in Madison, Indiana until 1839. Upon admission to the Indiana Bar Association he began practicing law in Indianapolis, Indiana. In 1842, he married Alice Thomas of Paris, Kentucky. He served as U.S. District Attorney from 1848-1850, a commissioner to draft the Civil Code of Indiana in 1852, and as a member of the U.S. House of Representatives, elected as an Opposition Party candidate, from 1855-1857. Barbour was not a candidate for re-election to the House in 1856, and practiced law in Indianapolis until his death on July 19, 1880 in Indianapolis. He is buried in Crown Hill Cemetery in Indianapolis.
